

Ratana Sutta The Discourse On Jewels

Yānīdha bhūtāni samāgatāni
Whatever beings are here assembled
Bhummāni vā yāni va antalikkhe
Whether terrestrial or celestial
Sabbeva bhūta sumanā bhavantū
May every being be happy
Athopi sakkacca sunantu bhāsitam
Moreover, may they attentively listen to my words!

Tasmā hi buūtā ni sāmētha sabbe
Accordingly give good heed, all ye beings
Mettam Karōtha mānusiya pajāya
Show your love to humans who,
Divā ca rattō ca haranti yē balim
Day and night, bring offerings to you
Tasmāhi ne rakkhatha appa-mattā
Therefore guard them zealously

Yankiñci vittam idha vā huraṃvā
Whatever treasure there be - either here or in the world beyond
Saggēsu vāyam ratanam panitam
Or whatever precious jewel in the heavens
Nanōsamam atthi tathāgatēna
Yet there is none comparable to the Accomplished One
Idampi Buddhē ratanam panitam
Truly, in the Buddha is this precious jewel found
Etena saccena suvatthi hotū
By this truth, may there be happiness

Khayam virāgam amatam panitam
That cessation, Passion free, Immortality Supreme Yadajjhagā sakyā munī samāhito
Through concentration, the tranquil sage of the Sakyas realised
Na tena dhammena samatthi kiñci
There is nought comparable with that Dhamma
Idampi dhamme ratanam panitam
Truly, in the Dhamma is this precious jewel
Etena saccena suvatthi hotu
By this truth, may there be happiness

Yambuddha seṭṭho parivaṇṇayi sucim
That sanctity praised by the Buddha Supreme
Samādhī-mānantari kañña-māhu
Is described as 'concentration without interruption'
Samādhinā tena samo navijjati
There is nought like that concentration
